

CRIMINAL JUSTICE AND CRIMINOLOGY

Department Chair: Paul F. Joyce, Ph.D.

The Department of Criminal Justice and Criminology provides a broad-based education in the various components of the justice system including law enforcement, the judicial system, and corrections. This major prepares men and women to become leaders and outstanding practitioners in careers related to the justice system as well as for advanced educational opportunities, such as law school or other graduate programs. The Criminal Justice and Criminology faculty provides an education that is ethically centered, and which recognizes the importance diversity and inclusion are for the American Justice System to succeed at all levels. A global society demands an interdisciplinary approach to an education in the justice system that combines law and procedure, technology, business, policy development, human resource management, as well as other traditional disciplines. Just as important as providing opportunities for students to develop professional skills, is the opportunity for students to develop an ethical commitment to "justice for all," particularly as it relates to the underprivileged, educationally disadvantaged, minority citizens, women, children and the physically and mentally disadvantaged. In the course of this program, students develop a commitment to values and the pursuit of justice, including advocating for peaceful and lasting social change. The mission of the department embraces Salve Regina University's Mission Statement which "encourages students to work for a world that is harmonious, just, and merciful." The department views law as a vehicle for balancing the rights of the individual and the enforcement of duties, and as such, a means of establishing a more just and humane society. Maintaining the highest standards of integrity and personal responsibility is the expectation required from every student. Unethical and/or unlawful behavior will have a negative impact on the ability of an individual to attain employment in the justice field.

Accelerated Bachelor's/Master's Program Leading to the Master of Science in Administration of Justice and Homeland Security

The graduate program in the Administration of Justice and Homeland Security at Salve Regina University endeavors to address the professional requirements demanded of justice practitioners. The objective of the graduate program is to develop professionals who are morally centered and who will serve their communities guided by the principles of equal rights and respect for others. The courses in this program focus on:

1. the philosophical, historical, ethical, behavioral and policy dimensions of the discipline;
2. an analytical approach to practice within the criminal justice system and
3. practical tools to improve effectiveness within the various professional roles.

Salve Regina University offers an accelerated program of study that leads to both a bachelor's and a master's degree within five years. The design of this program is for the University's highly motivated, academically talented and qualified university undergraduates with a recommended grade point average of 3.30 or higher. Current undergraduates must complete the application process by February 15th of their junior year. Undergraduate students considered for the accelerated bachelor's/master's degree program are conditionally accepted into the master's program and may take four graduate courses (12 credits) during their senior year. Of these 12 credits, six are applied to the undergraduate degree. Final acceptance into the program is contingent upon the successful completion of the undergraduate degree and four graduate courses in the senior year. The total number of credits required to complete the accelerated bachelor's/master's degree program is 150, 24 of which are graduate credits taken in the fifth year. Undergraduate students may register for no more than two graduate courses per semester and for a total of no more than four graduate courses while having undergraduate status.

Related programs in other departments are the M.S. in Management and the M.A. in International Relations.

Criminal Justice and Criminology Student Learning Outcomes

At the completion of the program, students will be able to:

1. Demonstrate a thorough understanding of the institutions that make up the criminal justice system including policing/law enforcement, courts/law, and corrections/supervision and their interconnectedness; understand the importance of criminological theory and research and its relationship to the criminal justice system.
2. Demonstrate the ability to effectively communicate orally and in writing.
3. Demonstrate skills through experiential learning that are essential for careers in the criminal justice profession.
4. Demonstrate the ability to understand and apply ethical principles in personal and professional decision-making.

Associates

- Criminal Justice and Criminology (A.A.) (<https://catalog.salve.edu/undergraduate/academic-programs/criminal-justice-criminology/criminal-justice-criminology-aa/>)

Bachelor's

- Criminal Justice and Criminology (B.A.) (<https://catalog.salve.edu/undergraduate/academic-programs/criminal-justice-criminology/criminal-justice-criminology-ba/>)

Minors

- Criminal Justice and Criminology Minor (<https://catalog.salve.edu/undergraduate/academic-programs/criminal-justice-criminology/criminal-justice-criminology-minor/>)

CJC-074: Introduction to Legal Research (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-076: The Law of Drunk Driving (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-080: Hate Crimes (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-081: Interview (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-082: Human Trafficking (1 Credits)

Provide a legal enforcement, cyber and social overview of the crimes involved with human trafficking and the abuse of children.

CJC-087: Financial Crimes (1 Credits)

This course will focus introducing the students to the world of anti-money laundering (AML) by providing them with a basic understanding of relevant money laundering statutes, teaching current investigative techniques and methods used in both the private and government sectors and providing real-life case studies.

CJC-088: Scientific Investigations (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-091: Domestic Violence (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-093: Homicide (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-098: Sex Crimes Investigations (1 Credits)

This workshop demonstrates practical applications of theories learned in the classroom. It is selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and is offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-103: Policing in a Democratic Society (3 Credits)

A survey of the criminal justice systems in the United States, including the roles and responsibilities of the police, courts and correctional institutions. Focus on the role of the police in a democratic society, policing concepts and strategies, historical development of police, police organization, and contemporary issues and challenges facing police leaders are examined.

CJC-110: American Judicial System (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103 is required.

This course is an introduction to the American legal system. Through analysis of actual court cases, students learn the legal principles and the reasoning used in judicial decision making. In order to fully examine our judicial system, this course will also focus on the roles of judges, juries, lawyers, and litigants. The perspective is broader and more evaluative than that taken in most law school courses. Students will be provided with the necessary skills to interpret and brief cases in subsequent semesters.

CJC-205: Criminology (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103 and CJC-110 are required.

Pre/Co-requisite(s): CJC-210 is required.

Course serves as a general introduction to the study of crime, largely from a criminological perspective rooted in sociological framework. Provides students with a solid foundation of criminological theory and the methods used for studying and assessing crime and crime policy issues.

CJC-210: Principles of Correctional Operations (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103 is required.

This course is a comprehensive survey of the correctional process, including present philosophies and practices of punishment and rehabilitation; procedures of custodial institutions; functions of correctional officers; functions of probation and parole; classification program assignment; and release procedures.

CJC-222: American Legal History (3 Credits)

This course examines the roots of order in the United States by emphasizing certain institutions, customs, ideas and beliefs which continue to nurture order in the republic and the individual. We will examine, successively, the legacy of order received from the Hebrews, the classical culture of the Greeks and the Romans, the medieval world and the age of the Reformation, the turbulent civilization of the 17th century, the elegant civilization of the 18th century, and America's colonial experience. Examination of the Federalist Papers and the influence of the Founding Fathers on the establishment of our judicial branch of government will complete our study. Junior or senior academic standing is required.

Theme: Defining the American Experience.

Cross-listed with: POL-222.

CJC-230: Juvenile Justice (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 or permission of department chair are required.

This course examines the juvenile offender, current theories relative to the causes of delinquency, and prevention and early intervention programs. The juvenile justice system including its origins, philosophy, and contemporary challenges for reform will be analyzed. Study will include the rights of juveniles in the schools and court process.

CJC-232: Ethics in the Criminal Justice System (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103 and CJC-110 are required.

Course addresses the ethical standards of conduct required in policing, courts, and corrections and the conflicting strains and pressures produced by and within a system of justice. The greater social context of fairness and equity in the treatment of those involved in the justice system are examined through case studies of contemporary issues and illustration. Restraint, checks and balances and solutions are explored from organizational and legal perspectives, and the ultimate values of justice and mercy delineated.

CJC-243: Comparative Law and Justice Throughout the World (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required.

This course provides students with a foundation in comparative perspective that enables them to understand the complexities of global legal and justice problems and to use cross-national data to better understand the legal and justice system they will experience in their personal and professional lives.

CJC-250: Women and Crime (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required.

This course studies gender specific legal issues. The history and introduction of women's correctional facilities, disparities and differences from men's prisons, and gender responsive correctional programming are explored. It also examines the profile of the female offender through the exploration of female criminality, female gangs, criminal sentencing trends, adjustment to correctional systems to address victimization are addressed. Emphasis is placed on the roles of female staff in correctional facilities and throughout the criminal justice system, including female law enforcement officers.

CJC-260: Principles of Digital Forensics (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. This course will introduce students to the principles of digital forensics. The essentials covered in this course will include computer system storage fundamentals, operating systems and data transmission, computer network architecture, digital forensics best practices, proper evidence collection and storage, and federal rules and criminal codes. Upon successful completion of this course, the student will be ready to proceed into more advanced and technical courses such as computer forensics, mobile device forensics, and malicious code forensics.

CJC-261: Information Security Essentials (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. Students are provided an opportunity to network security, compliance and operations security, threats and vulnerabilities as well as application, data and host security. Moreover, topics such as access control, identity management, and cryptography are covered. This course is designed to prepare students to undertake the CompTIA Security + examination upon completion.

CJC-270: Introduction to Cybersecurity (3 Credits)

Course provides students with working knowledge of terms and concepts used in the fields of information technology, specifically related to cybersecurity and digital forensics. Students will learn the history, including the fundamentals of hardware and software, that will also include lessons to assist them in understanding and develop troubleshooting skills. Topics will include skills to help students understand not just cybersecurity, but also discuss the legal and ethical concerns of digital technology. Course will serve as a requirement for all students before being eligible to register for more advanced digital and cyber-related courses at the undergraduate level. Students not taking this course will still be required to take an APT (3 credit) course to fulfill CJC support course requirement.

CJC-302: Criminal Law and Procedure Part I (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210, CJC-232 and junior academic standing or permission of instructor are required. This course will provide students with an introduction to the fundamental principles of criminal law and criminal procedure in the United States. In the Criminal Law section of this course, students will learn how our state and federal criminal statutes have developed over time, from the common law, the Constitution as well as legislative enactment to create criminal statutes in state and federal law. The core concepts of mens rea, actus reus and concurrence will be discussed, with special emphasis on the burden placed on the prosecution to prove the elements of the charged crimes by proof and evidence beyond a reasonable doubt. In the Criminal Procedure section of this course, students will examine the protections the 4th Amendment, 5th Amendment, 6th Amendment, 8th Amendment as well as the 14th Amendment provide to those individuals under criminal investigation by law enforcement. This course will also examine the Constitutional protections of individuals charged with violations of the criminal law during the investigatory, arraignment, pre-trial and trial processes.

CJC-307: Criminal Law and Procedure Part II (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-302 is required. This course will provide students with an in-depth understanding of advanced principles of criminal law and criminal procedure in the United States. In the Criminal Law section of this course, students will examine the elements of the common law crimes of Murder, Manslaughter, Rape, Robbery, Burglary, Arson, Assault and Battery, and more. In addition, students will learn the difference between the various classifications of criminal intent, and the impact criminal intent has on the government's ability to charge criminal suspects with particular criminal offenses. Finally, students will learn the procedural and affirmative defenses to crimes, and how procedural and affirmative defenses impact criminal law. In the Criminal Procedure section of this course, students will examine the procedural aspects of the criminal investigation and prosecution of individuals charged with criminal offenses. The Constitutional protections of privacy, due process, statutes of limitation and other procedural safeguards will be studied, with the goal of understanding the balance between due process and crime control the rules of criminal procedure provide. This elective is recommended for any student interested in a career in law enforcement or as an attorney.

CJC-309: Torts (3 Credits)

This course provides an introduction to liability for civil wrongs. Topics include intentional torts, negligence, strict liability, nuisance and damages.

CJC-315: Computer Crime (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. This course covers the essential aspects of computer crime including relevant laws, standards, agencies that monitor computer crime, and terminology. It explores current issues and legal principles.

CJC-318: Disruptive Technology, Innovation and National Security (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-260 is required. Throughout history, cycles of technological innovation have fundamentally altered the character of national security, both internationally and domestically. This course analyzes the mechanisms by which rapid innovation can revolutionize national security by assessing disruptive technologies and innovation cycles. The course will be split into two parts: The first part of the course will examine what some have designated as 'revolutions in military affairs' (RMAs) and explore the technologies ranging from the longbow to the tank or radar that have fundamentally changed the character of warfare over the centuries. The second part will focus on current and future challenges tied to technological diffusion, and the instruments by which US law enforcement can evolve to mitigate against future technological threats. The growing ethical and legal issues associated with certain disruptive technologies will also be examined throughout the course.

CJC-323: Introduction to Homeland Security and the Intelligence Community (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. This course introduces students to the fundamental principles, structure, and function of homeland security and the intelligence community. It examines the four integrated functions of disaster management: prevention/mitigation, preparedness, response and recovery. It analyzes strategies to enhance collaboration among the various intelligence agencies on local, state and federal levels.

CJC-325: Philosophy of Law (3 Credits)

An examination of the nature of law from the leading philosophical perspectives. Readings include representative writers from the traditions of natural law, legal positivism, historical jurisprudence, and integrative legal studies. The course centers on law's commitment to establishing justice and an order integrally directed to the flourishing of the human good.

Fulfills Core Requirement in Philosophy.

Theme: What is Western Heritage?- Ancient and Modern.

Cross-listed with: PHL-325.

CJC-331: Punishment and Treatment of Juvenile Offenders (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. This course focuses on post-adjudicatory handling of juvenile offenders. It compares rehabilitation-oriented treatment policies with 'get tough' policies aimed at chronic, serious offenders. Model programs dealing with juvenile offenders in community settings and institutions will be examined.

CJC-340: Research Methods in Criminal Justice (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 and must be at least junior academic standing at the start of the course or permission of instructor are required.

Course introduces students to the social scientific approach to criminal justice research and inquiry. Explores foundational concepts, structure, and purpose of research. Theory, measurement, designs, applications, and ethical principles in human inquiry are examined.

CJC-350: Organized Crime (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required.

The course provides an in-depth study of organized crime in the United States and throughout the World. It begins by tracing the history of organized crime in America and then surveys different organized crime groups which exist in the US and throughout the world. Through discussion, theories and trends are examined in an attempt to understand the reasons for the existence of organized crime. Attention is also given to policies and practices of law enforcement in response to organized crime.

CJC-353: Child and Family Policy (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required.

Many children in this country are raised in circumstances that place them at risk for a myriad of social problems. Consequently, a substantial number of these children develop antisocial behaviors or behavioral health issues that alienate them from their communities and undermine their ability to lead healthy productive lives. Finding effective solutions to the complex problems faced by many of our children and their families is one of our nation's foremost public policy challenges. This course is intended to assist students to develop an informed perspective and conceptual framework on issues that impact children and their families. This helps students to become more effective, informed and fair-minded decision makers.

CJC-399: Special Topics (3 Credits)

These are 3-credit courses on current issues in the justice process selected by the Department of Criminal Justice & Criminology and offered on an irregular basis.

CJC-402: Evidence (3 Credits)

This course is a study of the Rules of Evidence, which govern the admissibility of evidence in a trial. Topics covered in this course include the preliminary rules of the admissibility and relevancy of evidence, the use of stipulations, the admissibility of character evidence, the use of privileges, the hearsay rule and its exceptions, lay and expert witness testimony, the exclusionary rule, and the best evidence rule. While Evidence is a course required in all law schools, this course is of great use to anyone interested in any one of a variety of different fields of interest in Criminal Justice & Criminology.

CJC-404: Introduction to Criminalistics (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required. This course studies the foundations of crime scene investigative theory and techniques. It explores its history, scientific rationale, and problems that may compromise accuracy or validity. Evidence collection skills will be emphasized.

CJC-414: Civil Liberties (3 Credits)

We will carefully study many important U.S. Supreme Court constitutional law cases that describe and develop our understanding of our constitutional rights and liberties-our freedom of religion, speech and press, the right of privacy, rights of the criminally accused, as well as rights concerning race, sex, and voting. We will supplement our study of these cases with an examination of some Founding Era documents that shed light on the original understanding of our rights and liberties and how this understanding has developed.

Fulfills Core Requirement in Social Sciences.

Theme: Defining the American Experience.

Cross-listed with: POL-414.

CJC-430: Controversial Legal Issues (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103, CJC-110, CJC-210 and CJC-232 are required.

This course explores the controversial legal issues that have become apparent since 9/11. The Patriot Act, strain between privacy interests and intelligence gathering, United States Supreme Court cases, and Human Rights issues will be studied. Using an historical approach and focusing on technological developments that make new forms of surveillance possible, it examines how constitutional issues are interpreted by the courts to determine constitutional rights and limits on government authority.

CJC-431: Justice and the Constitution (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): CJC-103 and CJC-110 are required.

The Constitution's Preamble makes explicit the Framers' intention to "establish justice." This course examines the United States Constitution with particular attention given to Supreme Court decisions that apply the Constitution to resolving social issues of importance. Our objective, through discussion and debate, will be to determine whether the Constitution, as interpreted, fulfills the promise to "establish justice."

CJC-450: Capstone: Application of Knowledge (3 Credits)

Pre-requisite(s): Completion of all CJC required, support, and elective courses; senior academic standing or permission of instructor are required.

Culminating course that brings together the students' academic, practical, and personal experiences gained over four years as CJC majors. Connects students to their core values of working for a world that is harmonious, just and merciful, setting high expectations of integrity and person responsibility and understanding the importance of compassion and service. Provides students the opportunity to apply their knowledge and skills to explore critical issues/problems facing criminal justice leaders in contemporary society and prepares them for their transition into the work world and/or graduate studies. Completion of all CJC required, support, and elective courses. Senior academic standing or permission of instructor is required.

CJC-491: Internship (3 Credits)

This course allows students to apply their skills and knowledge outside the classroom while gaining practice work experience at an approved agency.

CJC-499: Independent Study (3 Credits)

Supervised study in an area not available in regularly scheduled courses. Proposal approved by the department chair is required.