

PSYCHOLOGY OF CRIME MINOR

The Psychology of Crime minor is a multidisciplinary partnership between the Criminal Justice and Criminology (CJC), Psychology (PSY), and Social Work (SWK) Departments with a focus on the intersection of psychology and the criminal justice system. The skills and knowledge gained from this minor will benefit students pursuing careers in the criminal justice profession including police/law enforcement, courts/law, and corrections/supervision as well as social work, juvenile justice, public health, and human services. Central to the minor is understanding the impact of mental illness as it relates to individuals involved in the criminal justice system. Courses provide students with a comprehensive and in-depth understanding of forensic psychology, legal psychology, correctional psychology, and psychopathology.

This minor is open to all Salve Regina University students regardless of major and is comprised of 18 credits.
